

Worn in. Not worn out.

A full-funnel turnaround plan: win back relevance with the people who never sit down.

Loved by early adopters. Left behind by everyone else.

REVENUE

−36%

Net revenue fell from $297.8M (2022) to $189.8M (2024), per public annual reports.

PERCEPTION

"A desk shoe"

Seen as the tech-worker uniform, with a reputation (fair or not) for wearing through.

CATEGORY

Comfort moved on

Performance brands like On and Hoka now own "comfort" for people on their feet.

Nobody buys shoes to save the planet. They buy them to survive a Tuesday.

So we lead with comfort under pressure, and keep sustainability as the proof on every box.

The 100–Day Shift.

100 people who never sit down. 100 shifts in Allbirds. Every step counted. Their worn pairs become the campaign.

STEP 1 • RECRUIT

100 wearers

Nurses, cooks, baristas, teachers, dog walkers and new parents in NYC, Chicago and London.

STEP 2 • WEAR

100 shifts

Step counts and wear diaries, filmed by the wearers themselves. Real, not studio.

STEP 3 • REVEAL

The scuffs are the ad

Worn pairs photographed like museum pieces, then sent to ReRun for a second life.

One idea, every surface.

TEST A • PROOF

1.4 million steps.
Still comfy.
